4. According to paragraph 2(c), statements may be submitted in an electronic document which is supplied with an advanced electronic signature, or which meets the requirements specified in a separate act of legislation based on the empowerment of this Act.

The method of carrying out of the public procurement procedural actions by electronic means is laid down in a specific Government Decree, the provisions of which may be different from the provisions set out in this Act, to the extent as required by the carrying out of procedural actions by electronic means.

2. Where this Act prescribes that minutes shall be drawn up in the course of the contract award procedure, this criterion may also be fulfilled by recording the actions in a public document provided that the actions take place in the presence of a notary public.

3. Where this Act, or on the basis of this Act or a separate act of legislation based on the empowerment of this Act contracting authorities require the submission of a certificate in the course of the public procurement procedure, such a certificate may be submitted in a simple copy form, unless provided otherwise by an act of legislation. The contracting authority may prescribe the submission of originals or certified copies of such statements that serve directly as the basis of the enforcement of a claim (in particular guarantor letter or letter of suretyship). Where the tender is not submitted electronically, the original copy of the tender submitted pursuant to Article 61(1) shall contain the original, duly signed copy of the statement pursuant to Article 60(3). In the case of documents not submitted in Hungarian, the liable translation produced by the tenderer shall also be accepted by the contracting authority.³⁷

4. In case the certificate required by this Act is non-existent in the country outside the European Union where the tenderer is established, contracting authorities may accept a certificate, and even a document that is equal to the certificate.

³⁷ This amendment entered into force on 15 March 2014.

5. The certification of facts and data that may be verified free of charge by the contracting authority on an electronic, official³⁸ register available in Hungarian, including the registers specified by the Act on General Rules of Launching and Conducting a Service Providing Activity, may not be requested by the contracting authority in the course of the contract award procedure and shall not be presented by the tenderer or the entity contributing to the certification of the suitability thereof.

6. The Public Procurement Authority shall issue guidelines on the electronic, official³⁹ registers pursuant to paragraph 5 to be used frequently considering the subject-matter of the contract award procedures and on their accessibility on the Internet. If a register pursuant to paragraph 5 is not included in the guidelines of the Public Procurement Authority, the register in question shall be designated in the course of the contract award procedure by the tenderer (candidate) or the organisation participating in the certification of suitability.

7. The contracting authority verifies the fact of the inclusion in the registers specified in paragraph 5 on one occasion, during the period between the expiry of the time limit to submit tenders and the sending of the notice on the results of the procedure or, in a procedure consisting of two stages, between the expiration of the participation deadline and sending to the candidate of the notice of results concerning the participation stage, and keeps the fact and the result of the verification among the documents concerning the procedure.

Article 37

1. For the purposes of the time limits stipulated by this Act, the time limits or periods (hereinafter jointly referred to as 'time limits') expressed in days, months or years shall be calculated in such a manner that they do not include the starting date. The starting date shall be the date of the event or other circumstance from which the time limit begins to run.

2. A time limit expressed in months or years shall expire on the day which corresponds to the date following that of the starting date; if the month of expiry does not contain such a date, expiry shall take place on the last day of the month.

3. Where the closing date of the time limit is not a business day, expiry shall take place only on the subsequent business day.

4. Time limits indicated in notices (invitations) shall begin to run on the day following the date of dispatch of the relevant notice (invitation) or on the date of the direct sending of the invitation.

Article 41

1. Taking into account the minimum time limits laid down for each type of procedures, and also in such cases where this Act does not lay down a minimum time limit, the time limit for submission of tenders and the time limits for requests to participate shall be established in all cases by the contracting authority in such a way as to ensure enough time for drawing up and submitting tenders or requests to participate, considering the subject-matter of the contract, the degree of complexity of the tender to be submitted, and the scope of the documents to be filed by the tenderers and the candidates.

⁴⁰ This amendment entered into force on 1 July 2013.

⁴¹ This amendment entered into force on 1 January 2013.

⁴² This amendment entered into force on 1 January 2013.

The new time limit shall be set in such a way as to ensure in all cases a suitable period of time for the submission of tenders, but at least half of the minimum time limit for submission of tenders stipulated by this Act from the date of dispatch of the amending notice. If such a suitable period of time is also ensured on the basis of the original time limit for the submission of tenders, the original time limit shall not be extended. Where the modification affects only the documentation and the time limit for submission of tenders shall not be shortened, contrary to the provision set out in paragraph 2, the contracting authority shall not publish a notice, but only inform directly those economic operators who received the documentation about the amendment to or the availability of the amended documentation.

5. For the purposes of negotiated procedures without prior publication of a contract notice paragraph 1-4 shall be applied, noting that, instead of the dispatch of a notice, the economic operators invited to submit a tender shall be informed at the same time, directly, prior to the expiry of the deadline according to paragraph 1, and the time limit for submission of tenders shall be extended in such a way as to ensure a suitable period of time for the submission of tenders, from the sending of the additional information on the amendments.

In the negotiated procedure with the publication of a contract notice and in the competitive dialogue, the invitation to tender or the documentation (descriptive document) may not be amended in such a way as to change the terms indicated in a previous stage (stages) of the procedure to such an extent that it would distort competition or prejudice equal opportunities of economic operators, in particular where the decision of the interested economic operators concerning their ability to participate in the contract award procedure may have been substantially influenced by their awareness of the new terms or as a result of the amendment any of the tenderers would become unable to submit a tender.
5. In the case of an amendment to a larger extent, the integrated form of the documentation shall be made accessible in accordance with Articles 50-51, applied as appropriate.

Additional information

Article 45

1. In order to submit an appropriate tender or request to participate, any economic operator being potential candidate or potential tenderer in a given contract award procedure may ask in writing from the contracting authority or the authority designated by it additional (interpretative) information concerning the contents of the notice launching the procedure, in the case of a procedure consisting of more than one stage the invitation to tender and the documentation (descriptive document).

If the contracting authority has stated in the invitation launching the procedure that the receipt of the documentation (descriptive document) or the additional documents made accessible for the drawing up of the request to participate is a precondition for participation in the procedure, the provisions set out in Article 41(2) and (3) shall not apply to the extension of the time limit published in the notice. Economic operators which have not yet received the documentation (additional documents) at the time of the extension of time limit, shall be informed in writing about the abovementioned circumstance at the time of reception of the documentation (additional documents).⁴⁴

5. The provision of additional information may not prejudice the equal opportunities of economic operators. The full contents of the information shall be made accessible or sent to all of those economic operators which expressed their interest in the procedure to the contracting authority, in the participation stage of procedures consisting of more than one stage and in negotiated procedures without the publication of a contract notice all the economic operators invited directly to submit a tender or request to participate. 6. If any element of the documentation (descriptive document) is null and void because the same data, information is mentioned differently in several points within the documentation or any element of the documentation is not in line with the notice launching the procedure, the invitation to participate in a procedure consisting of more than one stage or with this Act, the contracting authority shall state this fact in an additional information without taking into consideration the provisions set out in Articles 42 and 43. The element, stipulation declared invalid may not be applied in the contract award procedure and in the public procurement contract.

7. Additional information may also be provided in the form of consultation. In that case, the time and place of the consultation shall be indicated in the notice launching the procedure. Minutes shall be taken on the consultation to be forwarded or made accessible by electronic means within five days thereof to the economic operators defined in paragraph 5.

For that purpose, those conditions whose existence, non-existence or a degree of deficiency determined therein rules the tenderer or the candidate out of being considered by the contracting authority as having the necessary ability to perform the contract, shall be stated pursuant to paragraph 1.

3. The contracting authority shall confine the establishment of suitability criteria to the subject-matter of the contract and may prescribe such criteria only to the extent actually necessary for the performance of the contract, also taking into consideration the estimated contract value.

6. The tenderer or the candidate may rely on the capacity of another entity for the certification of its suitability pursuant to paragraph 5 in the following cases:

- (a) where the tenderer or the candidate will actually use the resources presented during the certification of suitability and provided by that other entity in the course of the performance of the contract and it makes a statement on the method of its use; if the entity has been designated as a subcontractor, this fact also qualifies as such a declaration, or
- (b) where the suitability criterion is related to previous supplies, provision of services or execution of public works, the tenderer (candidate) shall make a statement on the way of involving in the performance of the contract the entity whose data is used by it for the certification of suitability, which enables it to use the professional experience of that entity in the performance of the contract, or
- (c) for the purposes of the certification of economic and financial ability - contrary to the provision set out in point (a) of this Article - even if the given suitability criteria are not related to resources which may actually be provided at the time of the performance. Under the provisions set out in Article 6:419 of the Civil Code, in such cases, the entity whose data are used by the tenderer or the candidate for the certification of suitability shall be liable in the same way as a guarantor for compensating the damage suffered by the contracting authority as a result of nonperformance or non-conformity by the tenderer.⁵⁰

Documents to be submitted by candidates and tenderers

Article 58

1. The contracting authority may require economic operators to submit the certificates which are necessary for the conduct of the contract award procedure, for the evaluation of tenders or requests to participate. Those certificates shall help to assess

Tender guarantee

Article 59

1. A contracting authority may make subject participation in the procedure to the condition of provision of a tender guarantee (for the purposes of this Chapter, hereinafter referred to as 'tender guarantee'), to be provided by tenderers at the time of submission of their tenders, or by the deadline specified by the contracting authority in the contract notice or in the invitation to tender in the amount defined therein. Tenderers shall produce proof of having the tender guarantee provided to the contracting authority. The guarantee ensures the observance of the validity period of the tender and the contracting authority may not make subject the participation in the participation stage to the condition of provision of a guarantee.

2. The tender guarantee may be provided by having the prescribed sum deposited into the payment account of the contracting authority or by the provision of a guarantee undertaken by a bank or an insurance company⁵⁶ or by furnishing a promissory note issued pursuant to an insurance contract and containing a first request guarantee, according to the choice of the tenderer. The place of payment and the payment account number of the contracting authority, together with the method of evidencing such payment shall be defined in the contract notice or in the invitation to tender.

3. The amount of the tender guarantee shall be established in a way that ensures equal opportunity to all tenderers and set so as to cover any potential cost to be incurred, as foreseeable, by the contracting authority in the event of infringement of the validity period of the tender as described in paragraph 4, in the event of the tenderer withdrawing his tender within the validity period or if the contracting fails due to reasons within the tenderer's sphere of interest. Where the contracting authority allows the division of the public procurement into lots, the tender guarantee and the amount thereof shall be set separately for each lot.

4. If the tenderer withdraws its tender during the validity period or the contract is not concluded due to a reason arising within the tenderer's sphere of interest, the tender guarantee shall be forfeit and can be claimed by the contracting authority.

5. The tender guarantee shall be refunded

(a) to tenderers within ten days after the withdrawal of the contract notice or the invitation to tender, or after having their tender declared invalid or after the dispatch of the notice on the results of the procedure to the tenderers;

(b) to the successful tenderer, or in the case set forth in Article 124(4) to the tenderer ranked second, within ten days after the conclusion of the contract, unless the contract notice stipulated the tender guarantee to be retained and transferred as additional security for the ensuing contract.

6. If participation in the procedure was made subject to the condition of the provision of a tender guarantee, the contracting authority shall, within ten days, refund double the amount in case of a tender guarantee furnished in cash, or an amount equivalent to the tender guarantee in all other cases

(a) to tenderers in the event of failing to notify tenderers of the results of the procedure during the validity period as set in the invitation to tender or during the extended validity period;

(b) the successful tenderer, or in the case set forth in Article 124(4), to the tenderer ranked second, in the event of failing to conclude the contract.

7. Contrary to the provisions set out in paragraph 6, if the contracting authority requests tenderers to maintain their tender pursuant to Article 62(2), and any of the tenderers or all tenderers choose not to maintain the tender, the guarantee shall be refunded within ten days after the receipt of the tenderer's statement or the dispatch of the notice on the results of the procedure to the tenderers. The tenderers maintaining their tender shall be requested by the contracting authority in the request defined in Article 65(2) to maintain the same guarantee as the one that was offered before, for the extended validity period of the tender.

CHAPTER X

The tender shall be drawn up and submitted by the tenderer in compliance with the requirements for the contents and form set out in the contract notice (invitation to tender) or, in the case of a procedure consisting of more than one stage in the invitation to tender and the invitation to participate, and in the documentation.
2. In the procedures consisting of more than one stage, the request to participate shall be drawn up and submitted by the candidates in compliance with the requirements for the contents and form set out in the invitation to participate.
3. The tender shall contain in particular the explicit statement of the tenderer concerning the conditions set out in the contract notice or invitation to tender, the conclusion and performance of the contract and the requested consideration.
4. No offer may be made in the request to participate.
5. Moreover, in the tender or, in the case of a procedure consisting of more than one stage in the request to participate, in addition to the submission other required documents, the tenderer or the candidate shall make a statement whether it qualifies as a micro, small or medium-sized enterprise according to the Act on Small and Medium-sized Enterprises and the Support Provided to Such Enterprises.
6. The tender and the request to participate shall contain a reading sheet which indicates the information specified in Article 62(3) in the case of tenders, or the information defined in Article 62(5) in the case of requests to participate.
7. The tenderer and the candidate shall have the right to amend or withdraw his tender or request to participate until the expiry of the the time limit for submission of tenders or the time limit for participation.
8. As regards the validity period of the tender relevant to the tenderer, the rules set out for each type of contract award procedure shall govern respectively.

Article 61

1. Where the submission of paper-based tenders (requests to participate) is required by the contracting authority, tenders and requests to participate shall be submitted in one paper-based original copy, in writing, in a sealed envelope, by hand delivery or mail, to the address indicated in the contract notice, in the invitation to tender or in the invitation to participate, by the expiry of the time limit to submit tenders or the time limit to participate. The contracting authority may prescribe the submission of electronic copies corresponding precisely to the paper-based original.⁵⁷
2. The contracting authority may permit the submission of the tenders and requests to participate by a method alternative to that specified in paragraph 1, provided that it can guarantee that the tenders will not be opened before the expiry of the time limit to submit tenders or the time limit to participate and will not be disclosed to unauthorised users within the sphere of interest of the contracting authority.
3. The packing of tenders or requests to participate received after the expiry of the deadline may be opened with the aim of identifying the tenderer or the candidate, and it shall be recorded by drawing up separate minutes.

Article 62

⁵⁷ This amendment entered into force on 1 July 2013.

1. The documents containing the tenders or requests to participate shall be opened at the time of the expiry of the time-limit fixed to submit tenders or the time limit to participate. The tender opening procedure shall last until all tenders or requests to participate submitted by the expiry of the time-limit have been opened.
2. The tender opening procedure may be attended only by the contracting authority, the tenderers, and persons invited by them and – in case of contracting authorities receiving support for the public procurement – the representatives of organisations and persons specified in a separate act of legislation.
3. Upon opening the tenders, the names and addresses (seat, residence) of the tenderers, as well as the main quantifiable particulars to be assessed according to the evaluation criteria (sub-criteria), shall be announced.
4. When the opening of the tenders - or, in the case of a negotiated procedure that of the final tenders - is started, immediately before the opening of the tenders, the contracting authority shall disclose the estimated value of the public procurement contract calculated without taking into account the provision set out in Article 18(2), as well as the amount of the funds available for the performance of the contract, where the division of the contract into lots is allowed, for each lot. If only one tenderer has submitted a tender in a negotiated procedure and there is no obligation to submit a final tender in writing pursuant to Article 92(7), the contracting authority shall disclose the estimated value of the public procurement contract and the amount of the funds available for the performance of the contract – if the division of the contract into lots is allowed, for each lot – in the framework of the last negotiation, following the submission of the final tender by the tenderer. The provisions of this paragraph do not exclude the disclosure by the contracting authority of the information concerning the estimated value and the amount of the funds available for the performance of the contract prior to the dates specified in this paragraph.⁵⁸
5. Upon opening the requests to participate, the names and addresses (seat, residence) of the candidates shall be announced.
6. If a person – being present at the opening of the tenders and specified in paragraph 2 – requests during the opening of the tenders to be permitted to have access to the reading sheet specified in Article 60(6) for review, he shall be given the opportunity to do so without delay, immediately after the presentation of the tender.
7. The contracting authority shall draw up minutes of the opening of the tenders and requests to participate not submitted electronically, as well as of the presentation of the data that has been read out and shall distribute such minutes to all tenderers and candidates within five days from the day of opening.

CHAPTER XI

Article 63

1. In the course of evaluating the tenders, the contracting authority shall examine the tenders if they are in compliance with the conditions set in the contract notice (the invitation to tender) or, in the case of procedures consisting of more than one stage the invitation to participate (to tender), the documentation and by law.
2. In the procedures consisting of one stage, the suitability or unsuitability of the tenderer to perform the contract shall be assessed against the criteria set out in the contract notice (the invitation to tender).
3. The contracting authority shall determine which tenders are invalid and whether there are any tenderers to be disqualified from the procedure.
4. Admissible tenders shall be assessed based on the evaluation criteria set forth in the invitation launching the procedure (Article 71) and with regard to Articles 71-73.

Article 64

⁵⁸ This amendment entered into force on 15 March 2014.

1. In the course of assessing the requests to participate, the contracting authority shall examine the requests if they are in compliance with the conditions set out in the invitation to participate and in the relevant legislation.
2. The suitability or unsuitability of the candidate to perform the contract shall be assessed against the stipulations of the invitation to participate. The assessment may involve the verification of the authenticity of the certifications, or of the adequacy of the certified copies.
3. The contracting authority shall determine which requests to participate are invalid and whether there are any candidates to be excluded from the procedure.

Article 65

1. The contracting authority shall be bound to evaluate the tenders as quickly as possible, the evaluation shall be carried out within a time period which allows the notification of the tenderers of the decision closing the procedure during the validity period of tenders.
2. In appropriate cases, prior to the expiry of the validity period of tenders, the contracting authority may request tenderers to maintain their tenders until a set date, but the extension of the validity period of tenders may not exceed sixty days from the original date of expiry of the validity period. If the tenderer does not make any statement within the time limit set by the contracting authority, it shall be considered that the tenderer will maintain its tender until the date set by the contracting authority. If any of the tenderers refuses to maintain his tender, his tender may not be taken into consideration after the expiry of the original validity period of tenders, in the course of the procedure, for the purposes of the evaluation.
3. The contracting authority shall be obliged to evaluate the requests to participate as quickly as possible, the evaluation shall be carried out within a time period which allows to send the notification on the results of the participating stage to the candidates prior to the date of dispatch of the invitation to tender indicated in the invitation to participate.
4. In appropriate cases, the contracting authority shall have the right to defer the date of sending of the invitation to tender set earlier, by not more than thirty days altogether; in that case, before the expiry of the original – or the modified - deadline, all candidates shall be notified at the same time of the new date of sending the invitation to tender and the candidates shall be notified of the results of the participation stage at an earlier date.⁵⁹

1. The contracting authority shall evaluate the tenders and the requests to participate, except where, due to unforeseeable and unavoidable reasons beyond its control, material circumstances arise after the starting of the contract award procedure or in the tendering stage of a procedure consisting of more than one stage after the expiry of the time limit for submission of tenders, which make it incapable to conclude the contract or to perform the contract once concluded. In such cases the contracting authority shall declare the procedure unsuccessful.
2. In negotiated procedures and competitive dialogues, the contracting authority shall be obliged to conclude the negotiation or the dialogue as quickly as possible, except where, due to unforeseeable and unavoidable reasons beyond its control, material circumstances arise after the expiry of the time limit for submission of tenders, which make it incapable to conclude the contract or to perform the contract once concluded. In such cases the contracting authority shall declare the procedure unsuccessful.

Request for supply of missing information, for provision of information from the tenderers or candidates

Article 67

1. The contracting authority shall ensure the possibility of supplying missing information under the same conditions for all tenderers and candidates and it shall request information from the tenderers or candidates for the purpose of clarifying the content of ambiguous statements, declarations, certificates included in the tenders or requests to participate.

⁵⁹ This amendment entered into force on 1 July 2013.

2. The request for supply of missing information or provision of information shall be sent by the contracting authority directly to the tenderers or candidates, informing about this fact at the same time all the other tenderers or candidates and setting the time limit, and in the case of request for the supply of missing information, providing for the information to be supplied.
3. The supply of missing information - in the course of which the documents included in the tender or the request to participate may be amended, as well as completed - shall be restricted to align the tender or the request to participate with the requirements set out in the contract notice, the invitation to tender or the invitation to participate, the documentation or the relevant legislation. In the course of the supply of missing information, if Article 26 was not applied properly, the economic operator designated as a subcontractor in the tender or, in the case of a procedure consisting of more than one stage in the request to participate, may be qualified as a joint tenderer or, in the case of a procedure consisting of more than one stage a joint candidate, but only in the participation stage.⁶⁰
4. During the whole time period - set in the request or notification according to paragraph 2 - of the supply of missing information for any tenderer or candidate, the tenderer or candidate has the right to supply such missing information for which he has not been requested by the contracting authority to supply missing information.
5. If the contracting authority perceives any missing information not mentioned in the previous requests for missing information, it shall be obliged to request for another supply of missing information. Where, in the course of the supply of missing information, the tenderer (candidate) involves in the procedure an economic operator which was not included in the tender (request to participate) and this involvement would require another supply of missing information, the contracting authority shall not be obliged to request for another supply of missing information, provided the contracting authority specified in the notice starting the contract award procedure that, in such cases, it would not prescribe another supply of missing information (or would only prescribe another supply of missing information with the restrictions set by itself). The missing information indicated earlier, may not be supplied in the course of the subsequent supplies of missing information.⁶¹
6. When the contracting authority requests information he shall do so in compliance with the provisions set out in paragraph 1 and 2 and the scope of the requested information shall be restricted to the information necessary for the evaluation of tenders or requests to participate, the request for information may not aim at negotiation with the tenderers or the candidates.
7. The supply of missing information or the provision of information may not
 - (a) prejudice the principles set out in Article 2(1)-(4) or
 - (b) infringe the validity period of the tender, i.e. modify the content of the tender concerning the subject-matter of the public procurement or the terms of the contract (hereinafter referred to as 'professional tender').
8. Contrary to the provisions set out in paragraph 7(b), errors that are not significant and concern specific details and whose modification does not affect the total price or a partial amount thereof to be evaluated, the result of the competition between tenderers and the ranking of tenderers to be formed during the evaluation [Article 63(4)], may be corrected in the course of the supply of missing information or the provision of information. In that context, where construction contracts are charged at a fixed rate, the items and the unit prices of the priced budget submitted as part of the professional tender may be supplemented, modified, completed or deleted, provided the correction does not result in the modification of the total price or a partial amount thereof to be evaluated. For the purposes of the priced budget such corrected Article 68 shall not apply.⁶²
9. The contracting authority shall be obliged to ascertain the supply of missing information and the request of information complies with the provisions set out in paragraph 3 and 7. In the case of non-observance of provisions of paragraph 3 or 7 or, if the supply of missing information, provision of information was not fulfilled or was fulfilled beyond the set time limit, only the original copy (copies) of the tender or request to participate may be taken into consideration.

⁶⁰ This paragraph entered into force on 1 July 2013.

⁶¹ This paragraph entered into force on 1 July 2013.

⁶² This amendment entered into force on 15 March 2014.

Correction of calculation errors in the tenders and the unrealistic tender element

Article 68

If the contracting authority perceives in the tender a calculation error affecting the result of the evaluation stipulated by Article 63(4), this error is corrected by the contracting authority by calculating the aggregate price based on the itemised value (core data) of the elements of the subject-matter of the contract, or by calculating another data based on a calculation included in the tender. All tenderers shall be advised forthwith in writing of the correction of the calculation error simultaneously, directly and without delay.

Article 69

1. The contracting authority shall request in writing the basic data determining the contents of those tender elements that are relevant for the assessment as well as an explanation, and shall notify the other tenderers of such request at the same time in writing, if a tender contains a consideration appearing to be abnormally low in light of the subject-matter of the contract to be concluded, as regards any of the amounts related to the consideration which shall be assessed individually according to Article 71.

2. For the purposes of assessing if the tender is abnormally low, the contracting authority shall take account of its previous experiences, the result of the market survey carried out prior to the public procurement, or other data used before the starting of the public procurement for determining the estimated value. In particular, the contracting authority shall be obliged to apply paragraph 1, where the consideration according to paragraph 1 included in the tender differs from the estimated value of the public procurement contract calculated without taking into account the provision set out in paragraph 18(2) - in the case of an element of the consideration being assessed individually, from the estimated value of that given element - by more than twenty per cent.⁶³

3. The contracting authority, on the basis of the explanations received and the documents available, shall verify whether the tender elements are well founded. Where the explanations are not sufficient for making a well-grounded decision, the contracting authority shall request tenderers in writing to provide information concerning disputed constituent elements in the tender. It is incumbent upon the tenderer to make all facts, data, calculation concerning the well-founded nature of the consideration available for the contracting authority so as to make it possible for the contracting authority to decide, after due deliberation, whether the consideration is well-founded.

4. The contracting authority may take into consideration objective explanations relating in particular to

- (a) the cost-efficiency of the manufacturing process, of the public works or of the provision of services,
- (b) the technical solutions chosen,
- (c) the exceptionally favourable performance conditions for the tenderer,
- (d) the originality of the goods, works, or services offered by the tenderer,
- (e) the compliance with employment protection provisions and working conditions in force at the place of performance of the public works, services, or supply contract, or
- (f) the possibilities the tenderer possesses for obtaining state support.

5. The contracting authority shall declare the tender invalid if it deems the explanation unsatisfactory and irreconcilable with economic rationality.

6. The explanation is considered as irreconcilable with economic rationality in particular when the tender price – regarding the extent of the live labour input needed for the performance of the contract – does not make provision for the financial cover for the wages and the related rates and taxes defined – within one year prior to the dispatch of the notice on the results of the procedure to the tenderer – in the relevant legislation, or in the collective agreement or in the contract extended by the minister for the sector, subsector. For the purposes of the consideration of the well-founded nature of the tender, the contracting authority may request information from the tenderer about those standard wages as well.

7. For the sake of comparison of offers, the contracting authority may request data founding specific tender elements from the other tenderers as well, where it is necessary for the decision-making on the well-founded nature of the tender price pursuant to paragraph 5.

8. The contracting authority may declare a tender invalid for being abnormally low owing to state support only if previously they had requested information in this respect from the tenderer in writing, and the tenderer was unable to prove that it obtained the relevant state support legally. The contracting authority shall inform the European Commission, through the Public Procurement Authority, about the tenders deemed invalid due to these reasons.

Article 70

1. If a tender element to be assessed based on the constituent factors appears to involve an unfeasible, abnormally low or high, or disproportionate undertaking, the contracting authority shall request in writing details of the affected tender elements and an explanation. The contracting authority shall notify the other tenderers of such request thereof simultaneously in writing.

2. The contracting authority, on the basis of the explanations received and the documents available, shall verify the tender elements and the feasibility of such, and may request tenderers in writing to provide information concerning disputed tender elements.

3. The contracting authority shall declare the tender invalid if it deems the explanation unacceptable and not reconcilable with economic rationality.

Award criteria, evaluation of tenders

Article 71

1. The contracting authority shall specify the award criteria in the notice launching the procedure.

2. The contract may be awarded based on either of the following two criteria:

- (a) the lowest price tender, or
- (b) the most economically advantageous tender.

3. If the contracting authority wishes to select the most economically advantageous tender, it shall specify:

- (a) the constituent factors for assessing the most economically advantageous tender;
- (b) the rated multiplier of each constituent factor to determine its weight, as consistent with the actual significance of such factor (hereinafter referred to as 'weight');
- (c) the lowest and highest scores, to be the same for all constituent factors, for the content elements of tenders when evaluating according to constituent factors;
- (d) the method(s) that shall provide the scores in the range between the limits of the scores [point (c)].

4. The contracting authority shall specify the constituent factors pursuant to paragraph 3 (a), according to the following requirements:

- (a) Within the scope of constituent factors the financial and economic standing, the technical and professional abilities of the tenderer for performing the contract shall not be evaluated;

- (b) The constituent factor for the amount of consideration shall always be provided for among the constituent factors;
 - (c) The constituent factors shall always be based on quantifiable elements or elements that may be evaluated based on professional requirements and shall be related to the subject-matter of the public procurement, the material terms of the relevant contract (in addition to the price, e.g.: quality, technical merit, aesthetic and functional characteristics, environmental and sustainability characteristics, running costs, economy and cost-effectiveness, after-sale service and technical assistance, supply of spare parts, securing stocks, delivery date or period); the offered degree of employment of unemployed or long-term unemployed people may be evaluated among the constituent factors.
 - (d) The constituent factors shall never allow the same substantial element in a tender being taken into consideration more than once;
 - (e) If within the scope of the constituent factors sub-factors have been specified, the relevant weight of these shall be specified commensurate to their actual significance. If the contracting authority, specifying the method described in paragraph 3 (d), describes which components or characteristics of the tender element relating to the constituent factor will be examined by him in the case of a given constituent factor that may be evaluated based on professional requirements, it may not be considered as the stipulation of a sub-factor.
5. The information listed in paragraph 3 shall be indicated in the notice launching the procedure (the details referred to in points (c) and (d) under —Other information|), however, the detailed description of the method(s) specified in point (d) may also be included in the documentation.
6. The Public Procurement Authority shall prepare recommendations regarding the methods referred to in paragraph 3 (d) and the assessment of the tenders.
7. In relation to the tender elements concerning constituent factors (sub-factors) other than the award criteria or the constituent factor (sub-factor) related to the consideration, the contracting authority may specify in the notice launching the procedure the most favourable level of the tender element in question, and he may stipulate that he will give the same score as the highest score specified according to paragraph 3 (c) to this most favourable level, as well as to the offers going beyond this level, and he may also stipulate a minimum level of requirement which shall be met by the given tender element, even if it is the less favourable option of that element among the tenders.

Article 72

1. Where the criterion for the award of the contract is that of the most economically advantageous tender, the contracting authorities shall evaluate the tender elements according to the constituent factors between the minimum and maximum points specified in the notice launching the procedure, by the method described in Article 71(3)(d), then weighs the scores given to each tender element and aggregates the products of multiplication for each tender. The most economically advantageous tender will have the highest aggregate score.
2. Should the total score of several tenders calculated according to paragraph 1 be identical, the tender offering the lower consideration shall be deemed the most economically advantageous one; while in the event of identical considerations, it shall be the tender which received higher score for the constituent factor (having been given a different score) with the largest weight.
3. The contracting authority may hold a drawing in the presence of a notary public and declare winner the tenderer selected on the basis of the drawing, if
- (a) the contracting authority shall base the award of the contract to the tender offering the lowest price and this lowest price is contained identically in two or more tenders, or
 - (b) the award criteria for tenders are the selection of the most economically advantageous tender, but the most economically advantageous tender cannot be determined applying the provisions of paragraph 2.

4. The winner of the contract award procedure shall be selected by a drawing for tenderers having submitted valid tenders with identical prices according to paragraph 3(a), and for tenderers having identical aggregated scores and subscores according to paragraph 3(b).

5. After the evaluation of tenders, the contracting authority may start an electronic auction, if it was indicated previously in the contract notice or in the invitation to tender. A separate act of legislation shall define the detailed rules for the electronic auction.

Article 73

The contract shall be awarded to the tenderer who has submitted to the contracting authority the most favourable valid tender according to the conditions set out in the notice launching the procedure - in a procedure consisting of more than one stage in the invitation to tender - and in the documentation, as well as according to one of the award criteria set out in Article 71(2).

4. The contracting authority shall not assess invalid tenders based on the award criteria.

Article 75

1. The contracting authority must exclude from the procedure those tenderers, candidates, subcontractors, or entities contributing to the certification of suitability

2. Where the contracting authority has allowed the subdivision of the contract into lots, only the lot concerned by the reason for invalidity may be declared invalid. If the contracting authority has indicated in the notice launching the procedure that the invalidity of any lot makes him lose interest in the conclusion of the contracts, and also has given an explanation for it therein, he may declare the procedure invalid as regards all lots.

CHAPTER XII

Types of contract award procedures

Article 82

1. Contract award procedures may be open or restricted or negotiated procedures or competitive dialogue. Recourse to a negotiated procedure or to a competitive dialogue may only take place if this is permitted by this Chapter. Negotiated procedures may be with or without the publication of a contract notice.
2. Contracting authorities may apply a framework agreement procedure as well.
3. Contracting authorities may create and operate a dynamic purchasing system that aims to pre-select those who are entitled to participate in the procedures to be conducted in order to realise certain public procurements. A separate act of legislation shall define the detailed rules concerning the dynamic purchasing system.
4. In the course of a contract award procedure there shall be no changeover from one type of procedure to another.

Open procedures

Article 83

1. The open procedure is a contract award procedure consisting of one stage whereby all interested economic operators may submit tenders.
2. The open procedure shall be launched by a contract notice.
3. The documents concerning the grounds for exclusion and the certification of suitability pursuant to the stipulations of the invitation and the documentation, as well as the provisions set out by this Act shall be submitted by the tenderer together with his tender. In open procedures no negotiation may take place.
4. The time limit for submission of tenders shall be set by the contracting authority in the contract notice at not less than 45 days from the date of dispatch of the notice.
5. If the contracting authority has dispatched a prior information notice at least fifty-two days, but not earlier than twelve months prior to the dispatch of the notice including the contract notice, which also contained the data available at the time of the dispatch of the information notice in a notice drawn up according to the standard form of contract notices, the time limit for submission of tenders provided in paragraph 4 may be shorter, however, it may not be shorter than twenty-nine days from the date of dispatch of the contract notice, with the exception of urgency, when the time limit for submission of tenders may be shortened to twenty-two days.
6. The time limit for submission of tenders, which must be at least forty-five days or twenty-nine days, may be shortened by not more than five days, provided the contracting authority makes the documentation accessible for the tenderers fully and without any charge, by electronic means, from the date the contract notice is published, and discloses the accessibility data in that notice.

7. In the open procedure, the contracting authority shall be bound by the stipulations of the invitation and the documentation (the commitment of the contracting authority), while the tenderer shall be bound by his tender (validity period of the tender) from the date of expiry of the time limit for submission of tenders. In the invitation for the submission of tenders, the contracting authority may not set a validity period exceeding thirty - in case of public works, or where the contract award procedure is conducted under a control integrated in a process stipulated by a separate act of legislation, sixty - days from its commencement.

Restricted procedures

Article 84

1. The restricted procedure is a contract award procedure consisting of two stages in the first stage of which, that of participation, the contracting authority decides whether or not the candidates are suitable for the performance of the contract. In the second stage, that of tendering, only those candidates qualified suitable and invited to tender by the contracting authority may submit a tender. There shall be no negotiation in the restrictive procedure.
2. The restricted procedures start with an invitation to participate.
3. In the course of the participation stage of the procedure any interested economic operator shall have the right to submit a request to participate, no tender may be submitted by candidates in the participation stage.
4. In the invitation to participate, the contracting authority may set the range of the number of tenderers, and state that, in the second stage of the procedure, it will send invitations to tender only to a number of candidates - selected from the candidates which are suitable and also submitted a valid request to participate - falling within the upper limit of that range. The range must include minimum five tenderers and shall provide for genuine competition.
5. If the contracting authority sets a range, it shall also define in the invitation to participate a ranking method in case the number of suitable candidates exceeds the upper limit of the range. Ranking can be determined in the scope of certification of technical and professional abilities necessary for the performance of the contract.

Article 85

1. In the restricted procedure, the contracting authority may not set a shorter time limit for participation than a period of thirty days from the day of issuing the notice containing the invitation to participate.
2. Exceptionally, in duly justified and urgent cases, the contracting authority shall have the right to set a shorter time limit for participation than the time limit according to paragraph 1, but it may not be less than ten days from the date of dispatch of the invitation to participate (accelerated procedure). The reason for the use of the accelerated procedure shall be stated in the notice launching the procedure.
3. If the participation stage is successful, then the contracting authority shall - not later than five business days after notifying the candidates of the results - send at the same time a written invitation to tender to suitable candidates, or in the case of setting of a range to the candidates selected based on technical or professional ability.
2. When the number of candidates qualified as suitable is less than the lowest number in the range, the contracting authority shall continue the procedure by inviting to tender the candidates that qualify as suitable. Candidates invited to tender may not submit joint tenders.

Article 87

1. As a minimum, the invitation to tender shall contain the following:
 - (a) the name and address, telephone and fax number (e-mail) of the contracting authority;
 - (b) reference to the issued invitation to participate and the date of its issuing;

 - (d) as required in the invitation to participate and, if necessary, the definition of certifications, declarations and documents to be attached to the tender, which shall prove that neither the tenderer, its subcontractor nor the entity contributing to the certification of suitability is liable to the grounds for exclusion at the time of the tendering stage;
 - (e) the time limit for submission of the tender;
 - (f) the tender submittal address;
 - (g) the indication whether or not the tender may be submitted in a language other than the Hungarian as well;

3. The tenderer shall follow the procedure stipulated in the invitation to tender – based on paragraph (1)(d) – regarding grounds for exclusion. Those certificates and declarations that had already been attached to the request to participate shall not be attached to the tender, except where the previously submitted certificate or declaration is not adequate anymore for the purposes of certifying as required.

Article 88

1. In the tendering stage of the restricted procedure, the time limit for submission of tenders shall be determined by the contracting authority as a period not shorter than forty days from sending the invitation to tender.
2. If minimum fifty-two days, but not more than twelve months prior to dispatch of the notice containing the invitation to participate, the contracting authority had dispatched a prior information notice and if it had contained the data as per the standard form of the invitation to participate and available at the time of dispatching the notice containing such information, then deadlines shorter than stipulated in paragraph 1 may also be defined. In such cases the time limit for submission of tenders shall be minimum twenty-six days from sending the invitation to tender.
3. The time limit for submission of tenders of not less than forty days according to paragraph 1, or of twenty-six days according to paragraph 2, may be shortened by not more than five days, provided the contracting authority made accessible the documentation, free-of-charge and fully, for tenderers directly by electronic means from the date of publication of the invitation to participate, and provides the access data in the invitation.

4. In accelerated procedure, in case of a restricted procedure, the contracting authority may not set a time limit for submission of tenders which is shorter than ten days from the day the invitation to tender is dispatched.

Negotiated procedures with the publication of a contract notice

Article 89

1. The negotiated procedure with the publication of a contract notice is a contract award procedure consisting of two stages in the first stage of which, that of participation, the contracting authority shall decide whether the candidate is suitable or not suitable for the performance of the contract and in the second stage, that of tendering, the contracting authority conduct negotiations on the terms of the contract with the suitable candidates invited to submit a tender.

2. Contracting authorities may award their public procurements in a negotiated procedure with the publication of a contract notice in the following cases:

- (b) in exceptional cases, when the nature of supplies, works, or services or the relevant risks involved do not permit prior overall (all inclusive) pricing;
- (c) for public works, when the works involved are required purely for the purposes of research, experiment or development, and not to establish commercial viability or recover research and development costs;
- (d) for public services, when the nature of the services to be provided, in particular in the case of intellectual services and financial services falling within category 6 of Annex 3, is such that contract specifications cannot be established with sufficient precision to permit the award of the contract by selecting the best tender in an open or restricted procedure.

Article 90

1. The negotiated procedure with the publication of a contract notice shall be launched by a request to participate. The invitation to participate shall state the grounds for the use of negotiated procedure.

2. In the participation stage of the procedure, any interested economic operator shall have the right to submit a request to participate. Candidates are not allowed to submit a tender in the participation stage.

The range must include minimum three tenderers and shall provide for genuine competition.

4. If the contracting authority sets a range, it shall also define in the invitation to participate a ranking method in case the number of suitable candidates exceeds the upper limit of the range. Ranking can be determined in the scope of certification of technical and professional abilities necessary for the performance of the contract.

5. The contracting authority shall have the right to stipulate that the negotiations in the tendering stage of the procedure will be conducted by him in several stages and that it will continue the negotiation in the subsequent stage only with those tenderers which submitted the most favourable tender according to the award criteria. In such cases the contracting authority shall already state in the notice launching the procedure that he intends to reduce the number of the tenderers in the course of the negotiation.

6. The provisions set out in Article 85 and 86 shall be applied in the negotiated procedures with the publication of a contract notice as well.

Article 91

In the invitation to tender, the contracting authority may not set a validity period exceeding thirty - in case of public works, or where the contract award procedure is conducted under a control integrated in a process stipulated by a separate act of legislation, sixty - days from its commencement (from the conclusion of negotiations).

3. The tenderer shall follow the procedure stipulated in the invitation to tender – based on paragraph (1) (d) – regarding grounds for exclusion. Those certifications and declarations that had already been attached to the request to participate shall not be attached to the tender, except where the previously submitted certification or declaration is not adequate anymore for the purposes of certifying as required.

Article 92

2. In the course of the negotiations, the contracting authority shall ensure equal treatment of the tenderers, thus in particular, all information provided by the contracting authority shall be communicated to all tenderers.

3. If the contracting authority negotiates with the tenderers one by one, no information provided by the tenderer about his tender during the negotiation may be communicated to the other tenderers without his permission.

4. The contracting authority shall draw up minutes of each negotiation which shall be signed by all tenderers that participated in the stage in question not later than by the commencement of the subsequent stage of the negotiation (in the case of a single stage or the last stage not later than two days after the negotiations ended), and a copy of such minutes shall be handed over or dispatched to them within two business days.

5. In the course of the negotiation, the subject-matter and the terms of the public procurement may not be modified in such a way as to

(a) modify the terms set out in invitation to participate, the invitation to tender and the documentation or complete those terms to such an extent that would distort competition or prejudice equal opportunities of economic operators - in particular where the decision of the interested economic operators concerning their ability to participate in the contract award procedure may have been substantially influenced by their awareness of the new terms - or make any tenderer incapable to submit a final tender at the end of the negotiations.

(b) change the award criteria or method.

6. In the case pursuant to Article 90(5), the contracting authority shall stipulate in advance in the invitation to tender the process of such a multi-round negotiation and the upper limit of the number of tenderers to be selected for the negotiation following the first or the given round. In the course of the negotiations conducted with the tenderers selected in the above manner the contracting authority may not modify its terms, not either according to paragraph (5), and the tenderers may only submit tenders which are more advantageous to the contracting authority compared to the tenders submitted in earlier rounds.

7. The contracting authority shall clearly notify in advance the tenderers of the date of conclusion of the negotiations, if the invitation to tender does not contain any precise information in this respect. As a conclusion of the negotiations, the contracting authority - by making accessible a new documentation where the extent of the modifications so justifies - shall invite tenderers to submit a final tender in writing, in a sealed envelope. If only one tenderer has submitted a tender in the procedure, the final offer may be made in the course of the negotiation, on condition that the contracting authority provided for it in the invitation to tender or the documentation. In the case of public works contracts, where the tender price is modified, the priced budget, which substantiates the modified price, shall also be submitted in the final tender to confirm the modified tender price. The time limit for submission of the final tenders shall also be set by the contracting authority.⁶⁵

1. In the course of the negotiated procedure, the tenders are evaluated in two stages by the contracting authority.

2. As regards the first tender, not entailing a validity period and submitted within the time limit for submission of tenders set in the invitation to tender, the contracting authority shall verify that the first tender is in compliance with the terms set out in the invitation to participate, the invitation to tender and the documentation. If the tender is invalid due to a reason in relation to which the tender may not be made suitable in the course of the negotiations or the supply of missing information, the tender shall be declared invalid prior to the starting of the negotiations. Considering Article 92(5)(a) and (b), the contracting authority shall have the right to indicate in the invitation to tender which elements related to the professional tender are excluded from negotiations or which elements will be part of the negotiations. Before starting the negotiations, the tender may only be declared invalid due to unsuitability of the professional tender, if such an element of the professional tender differs from the stipulations of the invitation to tender and the documentation, which will be excluded from the negotiations according to the invitation to tender. Any other missing data, information in relation to the certificates, declarations included in the tender shall be supplied until the conclusion of the negotiations.

3. After the conclusion of the negotiations, the contracting authority shall verify that the final tenders are in compliance with the contents of the invitation and the documentation at the time of the conclusion of negotiations and with the requirements set out in the relevant legislation, and, where appropriate, he applies Articles 67-70. Those missing data, information in relation to the declarations, documents which should have been supplied until the conclusion of negotiations, may not be supplied subsequently. The valid final tenders shall be evaluated by the contracting authority on the basis of the award criterion set in the notice launching the procedure.

Negotiated procedures without prior publication of a contract notice

Article 94

1. The negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice is a contract award procedure consisting of one stage, in which the contracting authority negotiates the terms of the contract with the tenderers invited to submit a tender and qualified as suitable.

2. Contracting authorities may conduct a negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice in the following cases:

- (a) if the open, restricted procedure or the competitive dialogue was unsuccessful under Article 76(1)(b) or (c), provided that the original terms set in the invitation to tender, the documentation or the descriptive document are not altered substantially, and that all the tenderers - not covered by Article 74(1)(a)-(d) and (2)(c) - of the open, restrictive procedure or the competitive dialogue are invited by the contracting authority to the negotiation.
- (b) the open, restrictive procedure or the negotiated procedure with the publication of a contract notice was unsuccessful because no tender or request to participate was submitted in the procedure, provided that the original terms set in the invitation to tender or the documentation are not altered substantially; a report to this effect shall be communicated by the contracting authority, through the Public Procurement Authority, to the European Commission;
- (c) when, for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with the protection of exclusive rights, the contract can only be concluded with a particular organisation or person;
- (d) insofar as is strictly necessary when, for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseen by the contracting authority, the time limit laid down for the open, restricted or negotiated procedures with the publication of a contract notice cannot be kept. However, the circumstances invoked to justify extreme urgency must not in any event be attributable to the negligence of the contracting authority.

3. Further, contracting authorities may award public works or public service contracts by negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice in the following cases:

- (a) for additional works or services not included in the contract first concluded but which have, through unforeseen circumstances, become necessary for the performance of the public works or service described therein, provided that such additional public works or services cannot be technically or economically separated from the main contract without great inconvenience to the contracting authorities, or, when such public works services, although separable from the performance of the original contract, are strictly necessary for its completion; on condition that the total estimated value of the contract(s) on such additional public works or service — awarded to the winner of the former award procedures — shall not exceed 50% of the value of the original public works or service;
- (b) for new public works or services consisting in the repetition or similar works or services entrusted to the former winning tenderer to which the same contracting authority awarded an earlier contract, provided that such works or services conform to a basic project for which a first contract was awarded in an open or restricted procedure, and the contracting authority indicated in the contract notice for the original procedure that the negotiated procedure might be adopted furthermore took into consideration the total estimated cost of subsequent works or services (to determine whether it reaches the EU threshold⁶⁷); such negotiated procedure may be applied solely during the three years following the conclusion of the original contract;

4. In addition, contracting authorities may award public supply contracts by negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice in the following cases:

⁶⁷ This amendment entered into force on 1 July 2013.

- (a) when the products involved are manufactured purely for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development; however, this provision does not extend to quantity production to establish commercial viability or to recover research and development costs;
- (b) for additional deliveries by the winner of the original contract which are intended either as a partial replacement of normal supplies or as the extension of existing supplies where a change of supplier would oblige the contracting authority to acquire material having different technical characteristics which would result in incompatibility or disproportionate technical difficulties in operation and maintenance; however, the total length of such contract(s) may not exceed three years;
- (c) when the product is listed on and procured from a commodity exchange;
- (d) when the supplies are procured with exceptionally favourable terms in the course of a sale in a liquidation procedure, in a closing sale or in the execution of a court warrant, or in any similar procedure related to the personal rights of the entity concerned.

5. In addition, contracting authorities may award public service contracts by negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice, where the contract concerned follows a design contest and must, under the rules applying, be awarded to the successful candidate or to one of the successful (awarded) candidates; in the latter case, all candidates (tenderers) recommended by the evaluation committee shall be invited to participate in the negotiations.

Article 95

1. Negotiated procedures without prior publication of a contract notice shall start by sending an invitation to tender - with the exception of the case specified in Article 94(4)(c)-(d) – and in the case pursuant to Article 99(2) it shall start by sending an invitation to negotiate.
2. In the negotiated procedures without prior publication of a contract notice, only such an economic operator (those economic operators) may submit a tender which were invited to tender. The economic operators invited to tender may not submit a joint tender, however, nothing prevents any economic operator invited to tender from submitting a joint tender with any other economic operator not invited to tender by the contracting authority.
3. If several tenderers may submit a tender, the invitation to tender shall be sent to all tenderers at the same time.
4. Where Article 94(2)(b) and (4)(a) applies to the negotiated procedure, and - if it may be reasonably ensured - in a situation resulting in extreme urgency in the case of application of Article 94(2)(d) as well, the contracting authority shall, if possible, send an invitation to tender to at least three tenderers.

Article 96

1. In addition to the contents provided for in Article 38, the invitation to tender shall contain at least the following:
 - (a) the ground for adopting the negotiated procedure;⁶⁸
 - (b) the process of negotiations and the related fundamental rules prescribed by the contracting authority;
 - (c) the date of the first negotiation;
2. In the negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice, the drawing up of a documentation is not compulsory. Where the contracting authority does not draw up a documentation, the contract terms, the technical specifications, the budget not stating the price in the case of public works, and, where appropriate, the requirements for the business organisation to be set up by the successful tenderers shall be set out by the contracting authority in the invitation for the submission of tenders.

⁶⁸ This point entered into force on 1 July 2013.

3. In the negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice according to Article 94(5), the contract shall be awarded on the sole basis of the award criterion for the most economically advantageous tender.

4. The contracting authority shall be bound by the stipulations of the invitation for the submission of tenders and the documentation, while the tenderer shall be bound by his tender from the date of conclusion of the negotiations. In the invitation for the submission of tenders, the contracting authority may not set a validity period exceeding thirty - in case of public works, or where the contract award procedure is conducted under a control integrated in a process stipulated by a separate act of legislation, sixty - days from its commencement (from the conclusion of negotiations).

Article 97

1. Article 92(1)-(4) and (7)-(8) shall also be applied to negotiations, with the necessary changes where applicable.

2. In the course of the negotiation, the subject-matter and the terms of the public procurement may not be modified in such a way as to

- (a) result in a divergence in the properties or conditions of the subject-matter or the terms of the contract awarded in the procedure from the original subject-matter intended to be purchased or the terms of the contract laid down at the commencement of the contract award procedure to such an extent that would have not allowed the application of a negotiated procedure,
- (b) modify the terms set out in the invitation to tender and the documentation or complete those terms to such an extent that makes any tenderer incapable to submit a final tender at the end of the negotiations, or
- (c) change the award criteria or method.

Article 98

1. In the course of the negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice the tenders are evaluated in two stages by the contracting authority.

2. As regards the first tenders, not entailing a validity period and submitted within the time limit for submission of tenders set in the invitation to tender, the contracting authority shall verify that the first tenders are in compliance with the conditions set out in the invitation to tender and the documentation. The suitability or unsuitability of the tenderer for the performance of the contract, as well as the invalidity of the tender in case of the existence of a ground for exclusion shall be established by the contracting authority before the starting of the negotiations.

Considering Article 97(2)(a) and (b), the contracting authority shall have the right to indicate in the invitation to tender which elements related to the professional tender are excluded from negotiations or which elements will be part of the negotiations. Before starting the negotiations, the tender may only be declared invalid due to unsuitability of the professional tender, if such an element of the professional tender differs from the stipulations of the invitation to tender and the documentation, which will be excluded from the negotiations according to the invitation to tender. Furthermore, if the tenderer does not fulfil the suitability criteria necessary for the performance of the contract or the tender is invalid due to the existence of a ground for exclusion, or if the tender is invalid due to a reason in relation to which the tender may not be made suitable in the course of the negotiations or the supply of missing information, the tender shall be declared invalid prior to the starting of the negotiations. Any other missing data, information in relation to the certificates, declarations included in the tender shall be supplied until the conclusion of the negotiations.

3. After the conclusion of the negotiations, the contracting authority shall verify that the final tenders are in compliance with the contents of the invitation and the documentation at the time of the conclusion of negotiations and with the requirements set out in the relevant legislation. Those missing data, information in relation to the declarations, documents which should have been supplied until the conclusion of the negotiations, may not be supplied subsequently. The final valid tenders shall be evaluated by the contracting authority on the basis of the award criterion set in the notice launching the procedure.

1. In negotiated procedures without prior publication of a contract notice under Article 94(2)(d), negotiations shall be conducted and a written contract concluded when the negotiations have been completed with the tenderer or the tenderers able to perform the contract within the period of time required by the extraordinary circumstances, or, if more economic operators received an invitation, with the tenderer who submitted the most favourable tender.
2. In that case the contracting authority shall send an invitation to tender or, where such an invitation to tender may not be drawn up due to an extreme urgency brought about by the circumstances, an invitation to negotiation to the suitable economic operators. The invitation to negotiation shall state the name and seat of the tenderer, the place and time of the negotiation and at least the subject-matter and the quantity of the public procurement.
3. In a procedure to be conducted considering an extreme urgency
 - (a) contrary to the general rules, no suitability criteria shall be stipulated and accordingly, the suitability of the tenderers shall not be certified by itself,
 - (b) the tenderers shall only make a statement that he is not subject to the grounds for exclusion according to Article 56 and, where appropriate, to other grounds for exclusions stipulated by the contracting authority , and
 - (c) the successful tenderer shall attach the certificates necessary for the certification of the non-existence of the grounds for exclusion not later than fifteen days following the conclusion of the contract.

Article 100

1. On the starting date of a negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice, the contracting authority shall submit the invitation to tender, as well as an information note on the name and address (seat, residence) of the economic operators to be invited to tender, the estimated value of the public procurement and the circumstances which justify the use of the negotiated procedure to the Public Procurement Arbitration Board.
2. For the purposes of Article 94(2)(d), when the contracting authority sends the invitation to tender or, where appropriate, the invitation to negotiation to the economic operators, he shall be bound to inform at the same time, without delay the Public Procurement Authority according to the provisions set out in paragraph (1)
3. On the starting date of the negotiated procedure specified in Article 94(4)(c) and (d), an information note stating the circumstances which justify the use of the negotiated procedure and – in cases according to point (d) – the name and address of the organisation concerned shall be submitted by the contracting entity without delay via fax or e-mail to the Public Procurement Arbitration Board.

Competitive dialogue

Article 101

1. The competitive dialogue is a contract award procedure whereby the contracting authority shall conduct a dialogue with the candidates selected by him according to the provisions set out in this Act, with the aim of identifying with precision the subject-matter of the public procurement and the type of and the terms for the relevant contract, and subsequently he invites them to submit a tender.
2. The competitiv dialogue consists of three stages:
 - (a) participation stage,
 - (b) dialogue,
 - (c) tendering stage.

Article 102

1. The contracting authority may make use of the competitive dialogue where

- (a) he is not able to define, or to define in the detail needed for using the open or the negotiated procedure, the technical specifications concerning the subject-matter of the public procurement, or
 - (b) he is not able to define, or to define in the detail needed for using the open or the negotiated procedure, the type of the contract, or the legal or the financial terms thereof.
2. The conditions specified in point (a) and (b) shall not be the consequence of any negligence on the part of the contracting authority.

Article 103

1. The competitive dialogue shall start with an invitation to participate. Article 90(1)-(5) shall also apply to the competitive dialogue noting that the term 'negotiation' shall be meant as dialogue conducted in the dialogue stage of the procedure.
2. In the competitive dialogue, the time limit for participation may not be shorter than thirty days from the date of dispatch of the invitation to participate.
3. In the competitive dialogue, the contract shall be awarded on the sole basis of the award criterion for the most economically advantageous tender.
4. The date of dispatch of the invitation to tender may not be set later than thirty - in case of public works, or where the contract award procedure is conducted under a control integrated in a process stipulated by a separate act of legislation, sixty - days after the opening of the requests to participate.
5. Where no descriptive document is made available by the contracting authority in the participation stage, the contracting authority shall set out his needs and requirements related to the subject-matter of the public procurement more precisely in the invitation to participate.

Article 104

1. If the participation stage is successful, then the contracting authority shall, not later than five business days after notifying the candidates of the results, send an invitation to tender at the same time to all candidates qualified as suitable, or in the case of setting of a range to the candidates selected based on technical or professional ability.
2. Where the number of candidates qualified as suitable is less than the lowest number in the range, the contracting authority may continue the procedure by inviting to conduct a dialogue the candidates qualified as suitable. The tenderers invited to participate individually in the dialogue may not submit joint proposal for solution or tender.
3. In the dialogue stage of the procedure, the tenderers shall submit proposals for solution, and then, based on those proposals for solution, the contracting authority shall conduct a dialogue with them.

Article 105

1. As a minimum, the invitation to tender shall contain the following:
 - (a) the name and address, telephone and fax number (e-mail) of the contracting authority;
 - (b) reference to the issued invitation to participate and the date of its issue;

 - (l) if the contracting authority intends to give a prize to one or more tenderer(s), the stipulations thereon set out by him;
 - (m) as required in the invitation to participate and if necessary, the definition of certificates, declarations and documents to be attached to the proposal for solution, which shall prove that neither the tenderer, its subcontractor nor the entity contributing to the certification of suitability is liable to the grounds for exclusion at the time of the conduct of the dialogue;
2. The descriptive document shall contain, in particular, a definition, to the extent the contracting authority is capable of, concerning the subject-matter of the public procurement, the related technical specifications for the public procurement, the contract terms, as well as guidelines about the circumstances concerning which the contracting authority requests proposals from tenderers and about the scope or requirements imposed by the contracting authority as regards those circumstances.
3. The proposed solution shall contain
- (a) the proposal, regarding one or more solution, of the tenderer concerning the conditions according to paragraph 2, as well as
 - (b) the preliminary tender of the candidate regarding the performance of the contract according to the technical, legal, or financial criteria proposed by that candidate, as well as
 - (c) the statement regarding what part of which proposed solution is a business secret, as well as
 - (d) the statement whether the tenderer agrees to the use of his proposal for solution – wholly or partly - during the definition regarding the requirements for the subject-matter of the procurement.
4. The contracting authority may stipulate in the invitation to tender that the submission of the proposal for solution means at the same time the permission of the tenderer for the contracting authority to use his proposal, ideas – which do not qualify as a protected intellectual property - for the purposes of the determination of the requirements concerning the subject-matter of the public procurement.
5. The rules pertaining to the opening of tenders shall be applied to the submission and opening of proposals for solution and the provisions set out in Article 74(1)(a) and Article 76(1)(a) shall be applied to the proposals for solution submitted by tenderers as well, with the necessary changes where applicable.

Article 106

1. The dialogue between the contracting authority and one or more tenderers in the competitive dialogue aims at defining in the detail needed for the contract award the technical specifications of the public procurement concerning the subject-matter of the public procurement, as well as the type of the contract or the legal or financial terms thereof.

2. During the dialogue the contracting authority shall ensure equality of treatment among all tenderers, and in particular the contracting authority shall provide to all tenderers any information they give to any tenderer.
3. During the conduct of the dialogue, the tenderers shall not be bound by their proposal for solution and the contracting authority shall not be bound by the conditions set by him either, however, in the procedure, neither the subject-matter of the public procurement, nor the conditions set by the invitation to participate, the invitation to tender and the descriptive document may be changed to such an extent that it would distort competition or prejudice equal opportunities of economic operators. Neither the award criteria nor the method may be modified in the course of the procedure.
4. In the case of application of Article 105(1)(k), in the course of further negotiation conducted with the participants still being in competition, the contracting authority may not modify the conditions set by him, not even pursuant to paragraph 3, and the tenderers may propose only more favourable solutions for the contracting authority than those proposed in the previous stage. Where a tenderer submits a multi-variant proposal for solution, those shall be considered as independent proposals, and the contracting authority is not bound to invite to a successive stage (stages) of the dialogue any specific solution proposed by a candidate.
5. The contracting authority shall conduct the dialogue with the tenderers one by one, and no information provided by him may be communicated to the other tenderers without his permission.
6. Where oral negotiations take place (as well) in the course of the dialogue, the contracting authority shall draw up minutes for each negotiation that shall be signed by all tenderers that participated in the negotiation in question not later than by the commencement of the subsequent stage of the negotiation (in the case of a single stage or the last stage not later than two days after the negotiations ended), and a copy of such minutes shall be handed over or dispatched to them within two business days.

Article 107

1. After the conclusion of the dialogues the contracting authority shall invite in writing, at the same time all tenderers who participated in the dialogue – or, where appropriate, in the last stage of the dialogue - to submit their tender.
2. Where all participants in their proposal for solution have agreed to the use of his proposal for solution – wholly or partly - during the definition regarding the requirements for the subject-matter of the procurement and the contracting authority considers it necessary, the contracting authority may use wholly or partly one or more proposals for solution in defining the public procurement technical specifications and the contract terms, for the drawing up of the final tender. In this case the contracting authority shall draw up a documentation for the tendering.
3. Where the requirements according to paragraph 2 do not exist, tenderers shall draw up their tenders by finalizing the previous proposal for solution.
4. The invitation to tender shall state the following:
 - (a) the deadline and the place for submission of tenders,

 - (d) the validity period of the tender,
 - (e) in compliance with the stipulations of the invitation to participate, if necessary, the certificates, declarations and documents to be attached to the tender, certifying that the tenderer and its subcontractor and the entity contributing to certification of suitability is not under the scope of grounds for exclusion in the tendering phase either.
5. The validity period of tender shall start with the expiry of the time limit for submission of tenders. In the invitation to tender, the contracting authority may not set a validity period exceeding thirty - in case of public works, or where the contract award procedure is conducted under a control integrated in a process stipulated by a separate act of legislation, sixty - days from its commencement.

6. The contracting authority shall verify the validity of tenders according to the provisions set out in this Act – where no documentation was drawn up for the submission of tenders the verification pursuant to Article 63(1) shall be provided in compliance with the requirements set in the descriptive document - and then he shall evaluate the valid tenders on the basis of the award criteria set out in the notice launching the procedure.

Framework agreement

Article 108

1. The contracting authority may realise its public procurement through a framework agreement as well.
2. For this purpose
 - (a) he shall conclude a framework agreement – considering the provisions set out in Article 109 – through the conduct of an open, restricted or, where the necessary conditions for the use of negotiated procedure are fulfilled, negotiated procedure;
 - (b) on the basis of the framework agreement, he shall realise the public procurement according to the provisions set out in Article 110.

Article 109

1. Framework agreements may be concluded in four ways:
 - (a) framework agreements concluded with one tenderer, which set out as obligatory all terms of the contract(s) aimed at the realisation of the public procurement based on it;
 - (b) framework agreements concluded with one tenderer, which do not set out all terms of the contract(s) aimed at the realisation of the public procurement based on it, or set out such terms and condition without any obligation for their fulfilment;
 - (c) framework agreements concluded with several tenderers, which set out as obligatory all terms of the contract(s) aimed at the realisation of the public procurement based on it;
 - (d) framework agreements concluded with several tenderers, which do not set out all terms of the contract(s) aimed at the realisation of the public procurement based on it, or set out such terms and condition without any obligation for their fulfilment;
2. In the notice launching the procedure, the contracting authority shall indicate which type of framework agreement pursuant to paragraph 1 is aimed at by the procedure
3. In the case a framework agreement concluded with several tenderers, in the notice launching the procedure the contracting authority shall state the range of the tenderers that have submitted the most favourable tender according to one of the award criteria set according to Article 71(2), and the contracting authority shall conclude a framework agreement with not more than the highest limit number of such tenderers. The range shall be adjusted to the subject-matter of the public procurement and to the specific characteristics of the procedure, and under all circumstances shall ensure genuine competition. The range shall include at least three tenderers. Article 72(2)–(4) shall not apply to the evaluation of identical tenders. Where several tenders are identical regarding the limit of the highest number of tenderers that have submitted most economically advantageous tenders, the contracting authority shall conclude a framework agreement with all such tenderers that have submitted identical tenders.
4. The framework agreement pursuant to paragraph 3 shall only be concluded with at least three tenderers if at least three suitable tenderers submitting a valid tender participate in the procedure. Where the contracting authority indicated in the notice launching the procedure that the procedure is aimed at the conclusion of the framework agreement according to paragraph 1(d), the procedure may be declared invalid – in addition to the cases set out in Article 76(1) - if only one suitable tender has been submitted.

5. The term of a framework agreement may not exceed four years, except in extraordinary, duly justified cases, in particular with regard to the subject-matter of the framework agreement. In this respect it shall be considered whether the specific features related to the given framework agreement require the setting of a longer fixed term, and whether or not it results in a disproportionate restriction of competition. The notice starting a contract award procedure to be conducted for the conclusion of a framework agreement exceeding four years shall specify the justification of the setting of a longer term. In the framework agreement, the contracting authority may indicate that it undertakes to realise a specific part of the envisaged quantity of the public procurement. The contracting authority shall not be bound to realise the public procurement based on the framework agreement if, due to unforeseeable and unavoidable reasons beyond its control, material circumstances making the contracting authority incapable of concluding or performing the contract(s) arise after the conclusion of the framework agreement. In such a case the contracting authority shall notify without delay, in writing the tenderers who signed the framework agreement and the Public Procurement Authority.⁶⁹

6. In order to implement the public procurement according to the framework agreement, the contracting authority may use another procedure with the prior publication of notice according to this Chapter, particularly when the framework agreement has been concluded for a term of several years or when the number of tenderers that concluded the framework agreement does not allow genuine competition. In this case the contracting authority, in a new notice, shall refer to this circumstance and shall inform at the same time, without any delay, about the publication of this new notice the tenderers that concluded the framework agreement.

7. The framework agreement may cover several subject-matters of public procurement.⁷⁰

8. The framework agreement concluded pursuant to paragraph 1(c) shall specify the objective criteria (e.g. the ranking determined on the basis of the award criterion used in the first phase or any other objective criteria related to the subject-matter of the public procurement based on the framework agreement) on the basis of which the contracting authority will conclude the contract aimed at the realisation of the specific public procurement with one or another tenderer participating in the framework agreement.

Article 110

1. The term of the contract(s) concluded on the basis of the framework agreement and the procured quantity may not exceed the term of the framework agreement or the total quantity envisaged in the framework agreement.

2. Where a consultation or the reopening of competition takes place on the basis of the framework agreement, the terms laid down in the framework agreement may not be substantially modified in the course of the consultation or the reopening of competition.

3. On the basis of a framework agreement concluded with one tenderer - including such cases in which the procedure aimed at the conclusion of a framework agreement according to Article 109(1)(c) or (d) and the framework agreement was concluded with the sole valid tenderer (pursuant to Article 109(1)(a) instead of (c) and Article 109(1)(b) instead of (d)) - the realisation of the given public procurement may take place:

- (a) according to the terms set in the framework agreement pursuant to Article 109(1)(a), through a direct purchasing order placed by the party entering in the framework agreement as a contracting authority;
- (b) for the purposes of a framework agreement according to Article 109(1)(b) through the conclusion of the contract following a consultation. In the invitation for consultation, the tenderer shall be invited by the contracting authority to complete his tender submitted in the procedure aimed at the conclusion of the framework agreement, the supplements to be taken into consideration by the tenderer when drawing up his tender shall be laid down by the contracting authority in the invitation for consultation. The invitation for consultation shall specify the data related to the subject-matter and the contract terms of the given public procurement. In the course of the consultation, the tenderer may only submit a tender similar to or more favourable than the terms of the framework agreement, the tenderer shall be bound by his tender submitted in the course of the consultation until the deadline set in the invitation for consultation. The contracting authority shall notify the tenderer of the acceptance or the rejection of his tender submitted in the course of the consultation.

Invalidity of the contract

Article 127⁹⁵

1. A contract falling under the scope of this Act is void, if
 - (a) it was concluded with the unlawful bypass of the contract award procedure;
 - (b) it was concluded as a result of a negotiated procedure without prior publication of a notice and the criteria for the application of this type of procedure were not fulfilled;
 - (c) the parties concluded the contract with the infringement of the rules regarding the standstill period [Article 79(5), Article 124(6) and (7)] and as a result, they deprived the tenderer of the opportunity to resort to a remedy preceeding the conclusion of the contract, and at the same time they infringed the rules applicable to public procurement in such a way that it influenced the prospects of the tenderer to win the contract award procedure.

⁹⁵ This Article entered into force on 15 March 2014.

2. Contrary to paragraph (1) the contract is not void, if no contract award procedure with prior publication of a notice was conducted or the contracting authority has concluded an agreement outside a formal contract award procedure [Article 9(1)(k)] because the contracting authority presumed, on the basis of this Act, to have a right to apply a contract award procedure without a prior publication of a notice or to conclude a contract outside a formal contract award procedure, and it has published a notice in accordance with the standard form provided in a separate act of legislation about its intentions to conclude a contract, furthermore it has not concluded the contract (agreement) within ten days following the publication of the notice;

3. In the case of contracts concluded under paragraph (1) herein, in the course of enforcing the legal consequences of ineffectiveness, the court may declare the contract valid with retroactive effect to the date of conclusion of the contract if any public interest of paramount importance is involved in the performance of the contract. The economic interest directly connected to the contract (in particular the costs resulting from the obligations due to the delayed performance, to the conduct of a new contract award procedure, to the possible changes of the contracting partner or to the invalidity) shall not be considered public interest of paramount importance, and any further economic interest connected to the validity of the contract shall only be regarded so if the invalidity of the contract would result in disproportionate consequences.

4. Any provision of a contract concluded pursuant to a contract award procedure shall be considered null and void should it exclude or restrict the application of legal consequences stipulated to a breach of contract perpetrated by the contracting authority except for the case set out in Article 6:155 (4) of the Civil Code concerning the interest on late payment.

5. Application of the legal consequences provided for in this Act shall not exclude the application of Article 6:95 of the Civil Code with regard to public procurement and to stating the invalidity of contracts concluded by way of infringement of the regulations applicable to contract award procedures. In addition to the cases stipulated in paragraph (1), the infringement of the rules (without prejudice to the provisions on the content elements of the contract) on contract award procedures shall result in the ineffectiveness of the contract, would the validity of the contract be incompatible with the purposes and the principles of this Act, taking into account the importance and the nature of the given infringement of the rules.

The public procurement contract shall be performed by the contracting party entering into the contract as the successful tenderer or joint tenderers based on the contract award procedure or – if the contracting authority required or allowed setting up a business organisation (Article 27) – by the business organisation (hereinafter referred to as project-company) set up by the winning tenderer(s) with their exclusive share.

4. The tenderer may not be replaced where, taking into consideration the specific characteristics of the given service, the employment of one particular subcontractor was considered as a determining factor in the course of the evaluation of tenders [Article 63(4)] in the contract award procedure.

5. The obligations stipulated in paragraphs 1 and 2 may be performed by the successor of the tenderer as a contracting party or of the non-natural person subcontractor, if any of them, as a legal person, is transformed, divided or merged with another legal person or is terminated otherwise with succession, pursuant to the relevant rules.⁹⁶
